What's Wrong With Our Schools?

By George Peck

New York, N. Y.

We have had considerable to say in this column regarding subversive teachings in some of our public schools. A business man whom it was our pleasant duty to interview recently, expressed another criticism of our school system. Each year this company finds it necessary to take on an additional number of young men. He was very pessimistic about the quality of applicants in recent years. He said:

"Most of the boys who apply here for jobs are totally unfitted and untrained. Our schools, at least in this city, have ceased to turn out self-reliant students. We want boys to enter the employ of
